Byrns Was Popular Speaker—Congress Session Will Be Affected By Death

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The national capital was plunged into grief today by the sudden death of the third highest ranking officer of the United States government, Speaker Joseph Wellington Byrns of the House of Representatives.

Shocked leaders of congress immediately abandoned plans to seek final adjournment on June 6. Both senate and house were expected to adjourn after short sessions today out of respect to his memory.

As a result of the speaker's death, congress was expected to take a series of recesses next week during the Republican national convention, returning here to complete its business during the week of June 15, prior to the Democratic convention.

Friends of the speaker, deeply affected, proposed a state funeral with the body lying in state in the rotunda of the capitol. Funeral arrangements, however, were withheld, pending arrival of his son, Joseph W. Byrns, Jr., from Nashville, Tenn. Burial was anticipated in Nashville, where the speaker began his long and brilliant political career.

Died Peacefully

The speaker, who would have celebrated his 67th birthday on July 20, died peacefully in his suite at

PA NEW OBSERVES

Occupants of the Greer building have noticed that the little night-hawk, which hatched out a pair of young ones on top of the old Post Office building is back, nesting again, at least it is believed to be the same bird. She has been setting in the northwest corner of the building for the past week or more.

Add odd sights department: A group of youngsters finishing a marble game shortly after dusk with the use of a small flashlight.

Just in case it has slipped your mind. The first day of summer is just 18 days away. The exact date is Monday, June 22.

R. R. Grim, of Portersville, reports a physiological rarity to The News. Mr. Grim states that at the farm of Ira W. Brown of Brown's Addition, Ellwood City, a colt has been born to mule mare. Such a rarity has never been heard of by many horsemen in this county and the young colt is attracting a lot of attention.

LEGAL MOVES MAY HALT STATE SENATE W. P. A. PROBE

By ARTHUR H. WAKELEE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, June 4.—Rebuffed by legal obstacles in two attempts to investigate alleged political activities of the state works progress administration, a senate committee named to conduct the inquiry today faced what observers termed a questionable future.

Predictions were general that the life of the group would come to an end at a hearing to be held at Williamsport June 12 when members of the committee must show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued against them, halting their activities.

Adjournment Forced

A temporary restraining order issued by federal Judge Albert W. Johnson at Scranton forced adjournment of the committee's sessions yesterday after resumption of the inquiry threw the state senate into a turmoil over charges the committee, as a "packed jury" operating in contempt of court, had presented "fictitious witnesses" in the pay of the group.

Legal observers, generally in accord with the committee's activities here constituted a contempt of court, through failure to recognize the restraining order immediately, expressed the belief nothing would be done about the charge because of the subsequent adjournment.

Members of the committee were non-committal about the order pointing out they preferred to wait action in the injunction hearing but indicating they would fight to the end in attempting to continue their investigation.

Alice Longworth Says

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—A feature that sometimes enlivens a campaign for nomination has been missing in the one that is drawing to a close. There has been no senatorial committee investigating the expenditures of candidates. Earlier in the year there were the usual rumors that huge cheques had not only been heard of but even seen, made out to the campaign fund of this or that candidate. In some cases an unbeliever was assured that photostats were obtainable, but they never materialized.

In 1920 the Borah Demand for pre-convention expense publicity resulted in hearings which brought out facts about sums received and disbursed that ditched two of the leading aspirants, General Leonard Wood and Governor Lowden of Illinois, and incidentally helped to get Harding as the nominee.

Is it possible that the Republican candidates this year are actually above suspicion? There is no other way to account for the lack of curiosity about their expenditures.

Knife Blade In Lung Four Years Finally Removed

(International News Service)

GLOUCESTER, N. J., June 4.—Leo Aubert, 35 year old painter, today was exhibiting to friends, a three-inch blade that for four years he had carried unsuspectingly in his left lung.

Aubert was stabbed in a street fight four years ago but was unaware that the knife blade had snapped off and remained in the wound until he suffered a lung hemorrhage two weeks ago. A two-hour operation was necessary to remove the blade in a Philadelphia hospital.

Aubert left the institution with the blade wrapped in cotton gauze as a souvenir.

"Folded Arms" Strike Spreading In France; Crisis Confronts Blum

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June 4.—The "folded arms" strike of France's industrial workers swept through scores of new plants today, threatening a paralyzing general strike and causing grave national apprehension as the new "popular front" government prepared to take power.

Residents of suburbs north and northwest of Paris were deprived of gas, electricity and water at noon when employees of a company controlling a monopoly of all three services went on strike. It was feared this crippling type of strike would spread.

Fear Food Supply Cut.

One of the gravest immediate fears centered on the possibility of a transport strike which would cut food supplies, an event which would have immediate and widespread repercussions.

The bourse reacted sharply to the strike crisis. Bank of France shares opening 150 francs below yesterday's low closing price of 5,650.

The passive resistance of approximately 400,000 strikers was notable for its lack of violence, but the unusual character of the walkouts and the rapidity with which they spread added to their effectiveness.

Ordinary activities in Paris and the principal industrial cities were slowed down to holiday speed as vital industries were halted by workmen who reported for duty and then barred factory gates, sitting idle at their work benches.

Strikers Get Food.

Admission was barred to plant officials and police. The strikers

CLEVELAND, June 4.—Somewhat after the fashion of a snowball rolling down hill, the Landon-for-President boom charged along today, picking up delegates here and there, and convincing political observers that the Kansas governor will be a first ballot nominee to oppose President Roosevelt in November.

The Landon managers, among them young red-headed John D. M. Hamilton, who is slated to be the campaign director, are modestly claiming "about 350 delegates," on the first ballot. Actually, they know they have more than that number, and actually they think there is to be a first ballot nomination in the best Republican tradition. Most Republican nomination

President Will Attend Funeral Of Speaker Byrns

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Mourning the death of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, President Roosevelt today ordered all federal flags at half mast, cancelled his cabinet meeting and prepared to follow the body of the Tennesseean to its final resting place.

Mr. Roosevelt will attend the state funeral in the capitol which the white house was advised is being arranged. Thereafter, he will go to Tennessee for the final interment wherever and whenever the family arranges it.

"Speaker Byrns belonged to that school of statesmen which is the hope and justification of our democracy," the president declared this morning, in commenting upon his old friend's death.

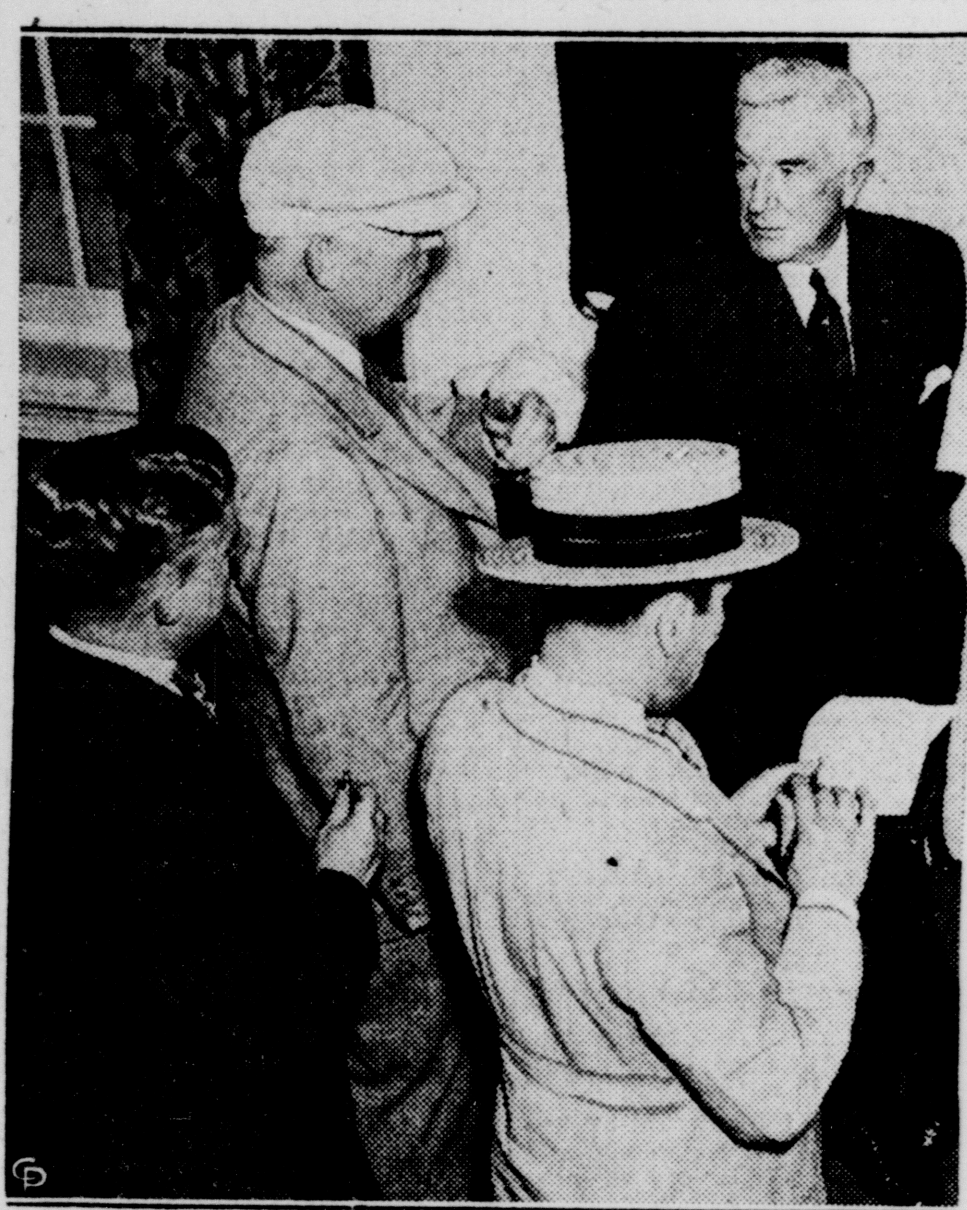

"By a happy coincidence, he represented for more than a quarter of a century the hermitage district of Tennessee, a district of sentimental significance because it holds the sacred dust of Andrew Jackson; and there was about Speaker Byrns a simplicity and rugged honesty which we have come to associate with the name of Jackson, fearless, incorruptible, unselfish, with a high sense of justice, wise in counsel, broad of vision, calm in adversity and modest in victory, he served his state and the nation with fidelity, honor and great usefulness."

"I personally mourn the passing of a steadfast friend of many years."

Abandon Notification Ceremony

HENRY P. FLETCHER IS AT THE RIGHT

National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican party is pictured above talking to reporters in Cleveland, as he announces abandonment of plans for a notification ceremony in Cleveland stadium, similar to the outdoor ceremony planned by the Democrats in Philadelphia. The decision was viewed by observers as another indication that the inner circle of the national committee regards the nomination of Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas inevitable. (Landon has sent word that in the event of his nomination he would prefer to have the notification ceremony at his home in Topeka.) Coincidentally the arrangements committee disclosed that Herbert Hoover had been invited to address the convention. This was followed by a demand from supporters of Senator William E. Borah that all candidates be invited to speak.

Black Legion "Colonel" Declares Dean Crazy; Denies Ordering Death

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, June 4.—Dayton Dean, the Black Legion's two-gun "trigger man," was today branded as "crazy" and a liar by "Colonel" Harvey Davis, whom Dean on the witness stand characterized as the generalissimo of the sinister "night ride" slaying of Charles A. Poole.

"Colonel" Davis, interviewed by this writer in a heavily guarded room off the cell block on the fifth floor of the county jail, denied Dean's charge that he "got up" the Poole execution or that he ordered Dean to blaze away at the victim with two guns, a .45 and a .38.

Asked point blank whether he was at the murder scene on the fatal night of May 12 last, Davis replied: "I was 90 feet away."

"Didn't See Shots Fired."

"Did you see the shots fired?" I asked the Black Legion "colonel."

"No," he said, with a straight face. Davis impressed me in the one-hour interview as being evasive, to put it mildly. He certainly wasn't giving himself the worst of it. He talked freely enough but he seemed nervous and fidgety. He was coatless and wore a brown vest over a cream colored shirt. He is 38, tall, slim, with brown hair and dark eyes that peer piercingly from beneath heavy eyebrows. His facial expression is a trifle sardonic.

Not only did Davis deny he was a "colonel" in the legion but he claimed it was Dean who got him to join the secret hooded organization whose members flipped an unfired bullet in the palm of their hands to signify to others that they were members.

"Surprised At Shooting."

Davis said he was surprised when Dean, a gun in each hand, poured a volley of eight shots into poor Poole as the victim protested "there must be some mistake" when the legionnaires accused him of beating his wife.

"I asked him why — he did it," Davis related. "He said, 'A lot

(BULLETIN)

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 4.—Enraged by his English professor's refusal to permit him to take a re-examination, a senior student at Lehigh University today whipped out a pistol and killed the professor and himself.

The slain instructor was Charles Wesley Phy, 30, formerly of Philadelphia, and a professor at the university for the last five years.

The student, Wesley L. Clow, was a resident of Pine Castle, Fla., who lived in a dormitory at the university, where he was on the varsity wrestling team in the 118-pound class.

A re-examination for Clow and another student, Harry T. Sanzley of Lancaster, both of whom failed in their final English examination, had been scheduled for eight o'clock this morning. When Clow reported to take the test shortly before 10 o'clock, Phy, according to police, refused to give him the examination.

INDICT DETECTIVE PARKER

Brooklyn Jury Makes Charges

See Interstate Political And Legal Battle As Outcome Of Action

DETECTIVE'S SON IS BEING SOUGHT

(International News Service)
TRENTON, N. J., June 4.—An interstate political and legal battle of far-reaching proportions appeared likely to result today from the indictment of Ellis Parker, Sr., in the Wendel kidnapping probe.

The fact that the Brooklyn grand jury had returned an indictment against the senior Parker on charges of abducting and torturing Paul H. Wendel, did not become known until the famous rural detective was taken into custody at his Mount Holly, N. J. home last night. Parker's son, Ellis Parker, Jr., is being sought by Brooklyn authorities under a similar indictment.

To Seek Extradition.

Today attacks of the office of District Attorney Geoghan of Brooklyn said they would present papers calling for Parker's extradition to Governor Hoffman of New Jersey as soon as they are signed by Governor Lehman of New York. Under the law, Governor Hoffman must get a hearing of the charges against Parker.

According to prominent New Jersey politicians this is as far as the effort to bring Parker to trial will get. However, Hoffman was expected to stand by his promise that he will never let a member of the Parker family be taken from the state for trial.

Geoghan declared he expected the extradition request to be rejected, but added significantly:

Indictment Will Stand.

"But Hoffman will not always be governor, and the indictment will still stand."

Parker, freed under $500 bail by a shirt-sleeved magistrate who held court in the Mount Holly Elks club, branded his indictment and arrest as "spite work."

"Geoghan is just trying to embarrass Governor Hoffman for his refusal to reappoint Col. Schwarzkopf as head of the state police," he said. "I expected this and am surprised it didn't come sooner."

Mrs. Frank Buhl Called By Death In Sharon Home

Widow Of Millionaire Steel Producer Dies Following Heart Attack

(International News Service)
SHARON, Pa., June 4.—The Shenandoah Valley today mourned the death of Mrs. Frank H. Buhl, 82, widow of the millionaire pioneer steel producer and philanthropist.

A heart attack claimed the life of Mrs. Buhl who like her husband, had poured thousands of dollars into various charitable and cultural enterprises. It was estimated that during the past three years she had contributed almost $3,000,000 for charities and various other local institutions.

Although in failing health for the past two years, Mrs. Buhl was not considered in danger until yesterday. She died six hours after physicians announced a "crisis" in her condition.

She was an aunt of the late Willie Whitt, who was kidnapped in 1908 in a crime which attracted nationwide attention.

Surviving are her sister, Mrs. James P. Whitt, a brother, H. P. Forker, both of this city, a niece, Mrs. Walter Braham, of New Castle, Pa., and a nephew, Henry Forker, Jr.

Buhl, who died in 1918, left an estate estimated to be worth upwards of $5,400,000, two millions of which he donated to French and Belgian refugees of the World War.

Among the institutions benefited by the couple's philanthropies were the Christian F. Buhl hospital, the Buhl farm, the Sunshine Home and the Buhl armory, all for the furtherance of social service work.

BLACK LEGION 'COLONEL' DECLARES DEAN CRAZY

of yellow — have got to get it. Why monkey around with that guy?"

Reminded that Dean said he was the "colonel" of the legion and sort of a generalissimo of the shooting party out on the lonely country road, Davis blurted out:

"He's all wet."

"But he makes you out the arch conspirator," he was told.

"He's crazy," I never had one of those robes. I never had enough money to buy one," retorted Davis.

Asked if he thought the Black Legion, or any other organization, had a right to take a man out and kill him because the heard he beat his wife, Davis emphatically replied:

"No sir!"

Not Bothered By Conscience.

Davis looked surprised when I asked him if his conscience bothered him as a result of the tragic death of Poole. He said:

"No. I didn't kill the man. I didn't advocate that he be killed. I feel sorry for his wife and his children."

He declared he "had no idea in the world" why Dean "put him on the spot" by testifying he ordered the shooting of Poole.

Davis revealed that he is "thru" with any and all secret organizations. Asked the question, "Should the Black Legion be broken up?" he replied:

"As far as I am concerned, I'm done with the Black Legion or any other organization, political or otherwise. They're a lot of bunk. Why belong to any organization? I have no faith in political parties. They are all crooked."

Davis reiterated "I am not guilty," referring to the Poole slaying.

"Then why did you go out to that spot in the country with Poole?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he answered, slowly. "That's just an untold part I don't know anything about."

"Werent you afraid after Poole was shot?"

"Yes," was afraid I'd get it myself," he replied. "I was afraid of Dean. A guy crazy enough to shoot one guy wouldn't hesitate to shoot another guy."

Parole System Given Praise

Louis E. Meyer, Secretary Of State Board Of Pardons, Speaks

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, June 4.—Pennsylvania's parole system was lauded today by Louis E. Meyer, secretary of the state board of pardons, who announced that of 314 prison inmates released on parole after commutation of sentence since January, 1935, only three have violated their paroles.

Very Fine Record

Calling attention to the fact no prisoner whose sentence was commuted in the first year of the present administration was re-arrested, Meyer said:

"This is a record unparalleled in this or any other state or under the federal parole system. It is a direct result of the board's policy that habitual or hardened criminals shall not be returned to society via the parole route."

Since the first of 1935, the board heard 1,613 applications for clemency. A total of 62 pardons were granted, while sentences of 314 were commuted and paroled. One man under the death sentence was given commutation to life imprisonment, and clemency pleas of 1,237 applicants were refused, including 11 who were electrocuted.

LANDON BOOM CONTINUES TO GAIN STRENGTH

nees for the presidency have been named on the first ballot. It gives an atmosphere of solidarity and unity that the Republicans like.

Managers Confident

The Landon managers can see no slip "twixt the cup and the lip." They have counted noses—east, west, north and south—and they are confident there can be nothing wrong with their figures. They were confident before J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut leader, rather than one of the oldest of the guardsmen of the old guard, came to the fore as the champion of the so-called "old guard" could not beat the Kansas. When Indiana came along yesterday and virtually pledged 28 votes to Landon they privately proclaimed it "all over but the shouting."

Impartial observers were inclined to agree with them, even though politics is reckoned an uncertain business, subject to change with very little notice.

Talk Vice Presidency

But it is significant—almost a week before the convention opens—that the Landon people are talking of the vice presidency rather than of the Presidency. Officially, they are keeping their eyes off—until first prize is definitely theirs, until they are weighing this man's "availability" against the next's, and figuring accordingly. The favorite son of the eastern leadership is Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York, whose conservatism has been proven through the years. He opposed prohibition and he opposed, before that, woman suffrage.

But the practical politicians who come from the Mid-West, the Far West and the Corn Belt, are not for Wadsworth. They incline rather to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, himself a favorite son of the Midwest, and the man who is reckoned the strongest candidate in the field outside of Governor Landon.

A ticket of Landon and Vandenberg would please them mightily. And it was this combination that was most talked of in Cleveland today among the incoming delegates, and by the members of the national committee.

"Landon and Vandenberg,"

Nearly every state delegation canvassed, whether instructed or uninstructed, expressed the opinion that this would be a good combination. More than one mid-western spokesman pointed out privately today that Representative Wadsworth is intimately identified with the American Liberty League, which they figured is no political asset. He was one of the founders of the league, and is now a member of the league's executive council. On the other hand, Senator Vandenberg has no such affiliations, has a voting record as a liberal in the Senate, and is the second choice—after Landon—of a considerable group in the West and Mid-West.

Dozen Other Names

A dozen other names are heard in the hotel lobbies in connection with the vice presidency—all of them disavowed by the Landon managers.

"Nobody," said Hamilton, "has been approved, directly or indirectly, regarding the vice-presidency. We have no candidate."

Hamilton pooh-poohed the idea of there being a coalition ticket composed of Governor Landon and an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, of whom a great many have been mentioned—Newton D. Baker, Lewis Douglas, Col. Henry Breckenridge, et al.

"But don't you intend," he was asked, "to make any bid for Democratic support?"

The Red-headed Kansan replied, quickly:

"President Roosevelt has done that for us. If the conservative Democrats can't see where Mr. Roosevelt is taking us, then there is no use in our naming a Democrat."

It is common gossip in Cleveland's hotel lobbies today that the Roraback-Hilles conversion to Landon has been predicated on the understanding that Hamilton is not to be the national chairman, succeeding Henry P. Fletcher. The best information is that there is so much understanding, and that if Gov. Landon is nominated Hamilton will be the director of his campaign.

There is scant doubt but that Messrs. Hilles and Roraback would like to see someone other than Hamilton in the saddle in the 1936 campaign. But, conceding Governor Landon's nomination, as most observers do, there is scant prospect of anyone else directing his campaign. Hamilton is to make the speech placing Governor Landon in nomination.

And, according to all outward appearances, it will be Hamilton who will direct the governor's campaign. It is rumored that the Roraback-Hilles support of Landon has been made contingent upon the proposition that Hamilton would not be made national chairman. No such commitment has been made by the Kansas governor. These rumors are linked up, rightly or wrongly with something that the late Boies Penrose said prior to the disastrous campaign of 1912. Informed that the party was facing wreckage and defeat in that campaign, Penrose is supposed to have grunted: "All right, but we will be in charge of the wreckage."

Should Governor Landon be defeated in 1936, Mr. Hilles and Mr. Roraback are accredited with wanting to be in charge of the wreckage. They don't want Governor Landon's campaign manager to be chairman of the Republican national committee for the ensuing four years.

Today the Republican national committee continued hearing contests from the Southern states. In virtually all of these contests both sides are for Governor Landon. The disputes are locally factional and vice versa.

arranged their own ingenious food supply system, however, lowering baskets by ropes to the street and hauling them up again after their women-folk had loaded the improvised dumb-waiters with edibles.

Newspaper, oil, transportation, motion picture and canning industries were hit today, and even the police force was affected in Paris as drivers of the "Black Marias" refused to work.

Leon Blum had a major crisis on his hands as he was about to become France's first Socialist premier late today. The "popular front" coalition he heads already was torn by dissension centering around the communists, who were elected with him but have refused to cooperate.

Blum's plan was to push for a 40-hour week for all workers which he hoped to put into effect within two months, believing such a program would be more effective than to seize unlimited power as Pierre Laval and Gaston Doumergue have done before him by enacting emergency decree laws.

group's activities followed a Philadelphia court decision holding the committee had no right to investigate an organization financed by federal funds.

If the investigation is permitted to continue, it was expected, senator Anthony Cavalcante, Fayette Democrat, will re-introduce a resolution calling for the investigating committee to answer reports it is operating with funds "furnished by a group plotting the overthrow of Democratic government in the state and nation." The resolution was introduced yesterday but was not voted upon because the Republican majority carried the senate to adjournment for the week.

NAME BANKHEAD HOUSE SPEAKER

Bankhead was named permanent speaker rather than speaker pro tempore. He will hold office, however, only until the new congress assumes power January 3, 1937.

Authorize State Funeral.

The house, after paying tribute to Speaker Byrns' memory, authorized the holding of a state funeral in the house chamber at high noon tomorrow.

The sergeant at arms also was authorized to arrange to convey the body of the late speaker to his home in Nashville, Tenn., where it is expected burial will take place.

In its only other action, the house empowered O'Connor to move a recess at any time so that business can be suspended during the funeral and during the Republican national convention.

Adjournment was ordered subject to the call of the speaker.

Have Narrow Escapes

Five men narrowly escaped death or injury when they fled from a barn that was lifted from its foundation and demolished on a farm near Carlisle. The same sweep of wind tore away the roofs of several farmhouses and otherwise damaged property in the vicinity.

Lightning sent a steeple crashing into the auditorium of a small church and killed a team of valuable horses in upper Dauphin county. Harrisburg felt only cool breezes and a light fall of rain.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 Miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 Miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

Clutching his chest, Phy staggered from the classroom in Saucen Hall and made his way down two short flights of steps to a hall, where he met Dr. R. C. Bull, director of student welfare.

As Phy collapsed in Dr. Bull's arms, a third shot rang out in a corridor upstairs. Rushing to the point from which the report had come, students found Clow dying with a bullet through the right temple.

Both Phy and Clow were rushed to St. Luke's hospital, where they died within a few minutes of each other.

TRI-QUAD CLUB GIRLS HONOR ALICE MITCHELL

Tri-Quad-Bridge club members were delightfully entertained in the home of Mrs. A. G. Reynolds on Euclid avenue Wednesday evening, the occasion being in the form of a surprise shower honoring Miss Alice Mitchell, bride-elect, who will wed Samuel McCleary this month.

Cards claimed attention during the earlier hours, favors going to Grace Sankey and Sylvia Lee Martin for their success. The evening was climaxed when the hostess presented the guest of honor with a beautiful gift of linen, in behalf of the club. She responded in a most gracious manner.

Lunch was served, the dining table appointments suggesting the season. White candelabra and a centerpiece of pink roses further carried out a color theme of pink and white. Miss Sankey later assisted the hostess in serving a tempting repast. Places were set for the full membership and one special guest, Mrs. J. Rudolph.

Mrs. Niel Sturdy of North Mercer street will entertain at her home, June 17.

About 250 members of the class were seated at the banquet table and enjoyed a most delicious dinner. President Eddie Donegan, acting as toastmaster, introduced Dr. C. C. Green, who delivered a talk to the graduates, and also F. L. Orth, principal of the school, congratulated the members upon their completion of their high school career.

At various times throughout the program talented members of the class were called upon. Miss Billie Glenn rendered a pleasing song and dance act, accompanied by the orchestra. Robert "Flash" Engle charmed the audience at this time with several vocal selections, and then Miss Dorothy Donnelly sang a number of selections.

Gifts of appreciation were presented from the class by their president along with a short introductory speech. Miss H. Elizabeth Parker, supervisor; Miss Marjorie Rhodes, assistant principal, and F. L. Orth, principal, were the ones that were thus honored.

Special guests present included Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Duff.

Chairman of the various committees who were responsible for the success of the evening included: General chairman, Mary Irene Taylor; Nedra Sergeant, Marian Patterson, Sara Edwards, Merrill Walls, Dorothy Eakin and James Lehman.

J. F. F. CLUB HONORS MEMBER ON BIRTHDAY

A delightful informal evening of card playing was enjoyed by members of the J. F. F. club Wednesday at the home of Eleanor Rohrer, East Long avenue. Misses Ellen McGowan and Edith Mariana captured the top honor prizes, while the galloping trophy fell to Helen M. Brown.

Miss Mary Flaherty was a special guest of the event.

The evening's festivities were featured with a birthday celebration in honor of Mrs. Harold McCartney, and she received a beautiful gift in behalf of the assemblage. At the dining table, where a tempting lunch was later served, the honored guest's place was cleverly marked with tiny drop cakes, which were lettered to spell her name. Other adornments used further carried out the birthday motif. The hostess was assisted in serving by candle light by her mother, Mrs. Andrew Rohrer.

Plans were made for a dinner party to take place at a tavern in New Wilmington Wednesday, June 17. Their next regular session will be held at the home of Mrs. Harold McCartney on Ashland avenue, the date to be decided.

MISS IRETTA V. DART HONORED BY TEACHERS

Oak street teachers gathered at the home of the Misses Anna and Martha Dodds, Elizabeth street, on Wednesday evening, to honor their principal, Miss Iretta Dart, at a special birthday party which proved a complete surprise, the date falling due this month.

Activities opened with the singing of an appropriate song by the assembly to the honored one, as they took their places about the beautifully appointed table. A cluster of hand painted daisies guarded by tall green and yellow tapers at either side, and novel place cards completed the arrangement.

A delicious menu was served in a unique manner. Following the first course, the guests exchanged places, and after the serving of dessert, each was given a flash light and upon being directed to "get acquainted with the garden," filed out to the yard. This proved an unusual and most enjoyable experience. Afterwards, Miss Dart was presented with a lovely gift in behalf of the guests. Miss Anna Perry was a special participant.

The remainder of the evening was spent with a variety of games and contests.

The dinner was prepared and served by the Misses Anna and Martha Dodds, Lillian Sedwick, Grace Eakin and Martha Smyth. Others who aided in making the occasion such a success, were Frances Carlon, Martha Muse, Clare Smyth, Dorothy Jenkins, Katherine McConaghy, Pearl Frazier, Florence Swearingen, Grace Hartung, Myrna Donnelly, Helen Hinkson, Virginia Bowman and Ina Rosenberg.

Successful from every standpoint, was the closing function of the Legislative Department of the Women's Club and the Council of Jewish Women, held in conjunction with the American Home Department of the Women's club, as an all day affair at Castle Hills on the Wilmington road.

Due to the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Max Ludwig, a member of both departments the many ladies present enjoyed golf and the use of the grounds in the morning. At noon, a delicious picnic lunch was served.

Following this came an enlightening and interesting address on "Our Constitution," by Attorney William C. Howell, who was introduced by Mrs. L. F. Kohn. Attorney Caldwell pointed out that this document has remained as the greatest charter of individual liberty and has proven its adequacy by defining the rights of the three great governmental departments, Judicial, Legislative and Executive.

He further stated that our constitution is not outmoded as the architects of our governments have recently used our constitution as the basis of their government.

Later in the afternoon, bridge was enjoyed by those present, handsome prizes for high scores going to Mrs. Grace Crawford and Mrs. L. Sandler. Bingo was a later diversion of the afternoon, all the ladies leaving with little tokens of remembrance of a most instructive and enjoyable day.

TAKE HIM BACK

JUST where Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, of the State of Washington, belongs properly is a question which may inspire some differences of opinion. Just how Mr. Zioncheck came to be sent to the House of Representatives from his district in Washington is a question which cannot easily be answered. It may at least be maintained successfully, however, that he does not belong in Congress.

The name of Mr. Zioncheck has been in the news almost constantly for some months. He has been arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, for speeding, for contempt, resisting an officer, for a brawl with his landlady. He has been charged with jumping his bail bond. He was involved in an automobile accident and other trouble in Porto Rico, incidental features of his wedding trip. Back in Washington, his antics resulted in his detention for investigation of his mental condition.

It is inconceivable that the State of Washington or the nation can derive any benefit from the continuance of Mr. Zioncheck as a member of Congress. His conduct, in fact, reflects discredit upon that body and upon his State. The young man is obviously at least irrational and it would be a kindly and a thoughtful thing if he were taken in hand and sent back to Washington, perhaps to a suitable institution for rest and treatment.

WHERE GEMS ARE SAFE

Does one's fancy run to having the cavities in one's teeth filled with diamonds, rather than with gold or porcelain? Well, one's diamonds are safe there. Safer than in rings or other jewelry.

A New York court has decided that the possessor of two diamond-studded front teeth does not have to give them up to satisfy a judgment unless he wants to. The judgment was for $242, and the owner of the teeth asserted that he paid $345 for the fillings several years ago. It did not develop whether diamonds had increased in value since that time, but only the owner may realize on the increment if there is one now or later.

For those who prefer diamond-studded teeth it will undoubtedly be good news to learn that their treasures are safely laid up where neither rust nor moth can corrupt and where even the most heartless creditor cannot break in and steal. The same doesn't apply when gangsters are around, and the possessor of bejeweled teeth must be mindful he has valuable goods in the front window.

DIVIDING THE WEALTH

If Andrew Mellon's fortune—liberally estimated at $94,000,000—were divided among the people of the United States, it would mean seventy-five cents (a cheap necktie) for each one of us.

J. P. Morgan's wealth, if we could lay hands on it, would yield us each about forty cents; from Henry Ford, if we could chop up his factories and mines, we could realize about four dollars; from Mr. Hearst the "take" would amount to something like one dollar and sixty cents; and another one dollar and sixty cents could be had from Mr. Rockefeller.

The total from this group, after deduction of the seventy-five cents secured from Mr. Mellon and already, as you will recall, spent on a necktie, would amount to seven dollars and sixty cents. With this we could each purchase a quart and a half of champagne with which to drown our disappointment over the discovery that the raid on accumulated surpluses had not made us all rich. —Portland Oregonian.

WHOSE MONEY IS IT?

State Treasurer Waters, in a recent letter to Governor Earle on the relief problem, called attention to a very significant factor which both state and federal legislators seem to have forgotten, but which they would do well to consider in the public interest.

Governor Earle, in replying to the treasurer's recent statement that Pennsylvania would not be short of relief at this time had the WPA kept its promise to provide for all employables on the state relief rolls, had extolled the Government's "generous" relief appropriations to Pennsylvania.

"Generosity," said Mr. Waters, "is not the proper term to use in this connection, since it is our own money which the federal Government is advancing to us, and in much less proportion than we will eventually pay to the federal Government."

Despite the personal burden of taxation which such "generosity" occasions, the enormity and involved bureaucracy of our Government have caused us to set it apart in our minds and to forget its relation to us as individual taxpayers. We are prone to give Government a separate identity and praise or condemn its acts as those of an individual to whom we are not related.

But, as Treasurer Waters points out, it is our Government and our money which is being spent. Pennsylvania in demanding the return in relief funds of at least a fair portion of the federal taxation which it pays is not asking for a gift from some foreign source, but is asking merely to participate in its own funds in proportion to its contributions.

It may appear that Congress has indeed been generous to the unemployed and needy by approving an appropriation of $1,425,000,000 for continuing the work relief program. It might, likewise, appear that the state senate was overly stingy and niggardly in cutting $2,000,000 from the relief appropriation for June approved by the lower house.

But it must be remembered in both cases that the money does not belong to Congress nor to the legislature. In appropriating too much money for relief—more than is necessary—they are extravagant with other people's money and not faithful to their stewardship as public servants. In withholding funds which they believe unnecessary they are attempting to protect the public funds entrusted to them. In neither case are they dealing with their own money—other than the comparatively small amounts they contribute in taxes.

It is about time suggests the Meadville Tribune that legislative leaders give some thought to those paying the bill; about time they call an armistice to their political skirmishing and get down to the business of framing adequate relief programmes that can be justified to the people who are to put up the money for them.

THE well-advertised Queen Mary, looking very big moving up her New York dock, represented in reality the quintessence of compressed power. On the way over she developed 160,000 horsepower. That number of horses hitched in pairs, one ahead of the other, would make a "team" more than 250 miles long. Still more remarkable power compression is that of the flying engine, which compresses the power of a 1,000-pound horse into less than three pounds of metal.

By MARSHALL MASLIN

WHAT'S YOUR PHILOSOPHY? Occasionally I received a kind letter from someone who praises my "philosophy."

And whenever that happens I feel like a faker. . . . Because I know I am receiving praise under false pretenses.

After all, the test of a "philosophy" is: Does it work when it's needed? Does it support a man in poverty and riches, in sickness and health, in victory as well as in defeat? . . . Is it a good tool, or is it merely a doodad for the mantelpiece? . . . There's your test of a sound philosophy, because wisdom is in action, not just in words.

Back in the first year of the war, in 1914, that great Frenchman, Comman Rolland, who hated war because he loved mankind refused to change his principles and became unpopular in France. . . . When his friends begged him to find reasons for supporting that war, he said he did not see why he should abandon his principles just when they were necessary to him.

That's how I feel about any man's philosophy, that's the way I feel about my own. . . . And I cannot accept that praise before I know I have earned it. . . . I have been happy. I have always had a job when I needed one. I have known no great tragedy, no suffering except what I have brought upon myself. I have never known months of illness. I have never been abandoned and friendless. I have far better fortune than the great majority of human beings. . . . So far I HAVE HAD THE BREAKS OF LUCK.

Can any man who has lived that sort of life, a life that has made no extraordinary demands upon his wisdom or his courage, accept praise for his "philosophy," blandly, smugly, as though he had properly earned it?

Once I paid good money for a saw. It looked like a fine tool, it was guaranteed to be of good steel. But it lost its edge quickly, and when I took it to an old fellow to have it set, the teeth broke under its setting tool and he told me it was worthless; the steel in it was poor and I might as well throw it away. Nothing could be done for it.

Praise no man's "philosophy." Learn first whether it is a true reflection of his character!

TRAGEDY

She hadn't been seen for a week or more

And one of the neighbors wondered why

Told the police and they forced the door

What a lonely death some old people die!

I learned from the women who gathered round

That she'd talked of a son who had gone to sea

She had told them he soon would be homebound

And never again would she lonely be.

She waited and watched as the days went by

But alone she was when death paid his call

And there on the floor untouched to lie

Was the letter the postman too late let fall.

'Till he home next week!" so the letter read

But never to her was the glad news known

For the eyes had closed and the soul had fled

And death had come as she sat alone.

PROSPERITY IN CANS

The commercial food canning industry of the United States observed a few days ago its 117th anniversary. It is still growing. The consumption of canned food last year was the greatest in the history of the industry. Total sales were almost $100,000,000 more than in 1934. The pack of the principal vegetables—corn, peas and tomatoes—showed a gain of 30 to 50 per cent. The aggregate was six billion cans. Between 250,000 and 300,000 farmers in 42 states shared in the increase.

The phenomenal rise of 1935 was in large part due to the depleted stock of grocers and jobbers at the close of the preceding year. They had been buying in small lots as the immediate demand indicated, fearful lest they overload. The spurt of recovery which came with increasing employment and freer spending found their shelves virtually bare. They ordered then in large quantities.

Not only the industry itself and the employment which it provides are benefited as a result. The demand for tin plate is 98 per cent iron; thus only the automobile manufacturers rate above the canners as the best customers of the steel industry.

A recent Maine exhibition of the progress of canning included a can of corn packed in 1867, the contents evidently still in good condition. But the modern machine-made can is far advanced from such early and crude hand-made containers. Many innovations then unknown are commonplace now. New types of containers for new purposes—the recently marketed beer cans, for example—are continually developed. The invasion of such new fields is a considerable factor in the growth of the industry.

Successful development of a container or canning process that would preserve the natural flavor of orange juice, taking it out of the class of perishable commodities, would open the way to further experiments in recent years will not halt the quest for a method that would permit regular delivery of wholesome citrus juices to doorsteps throughout the nation at moderate cost. Floridians are watching the progress in food preservation with confidence that, before many years, scientists will make possible a vastly enlarged and stabilized market for their products.

DEAR Miss Markel—My sister is going to have her baby christened at her home. She asked me to write to you for instructions as to what preparation she should make for this event; that is the preparation for the christening ceremony and the refreshments for the guests a little later.—G. E.

Answer—The rules of some churches forbid home christenings; others permit them. If yours is among the latter, you may very easily have the event take place in your home.

In the room where the ceremony will occur there should be a table covered with a white cloth. A bowl, partially filled with water should be placed thereon to be used as a font. Flowers, of course, will add a cheerful note to the room, especially if placed behind the font.

A room should be prepared for the clergyman's use when putting on his vestments, etc.

A short time before the hour set for the ceremony, the guests arrive and are received informally by the proud parents. When all is ready the baby is brought in by either the godmother or one of the parents. If there is to be no godmother, the ceremony then proceeds in the usual way, the godmother (if there is one) holding the baby.

You may serve tea, sandwiches and small cakes, or a buffet supper if the christening will take place in the late afternoon.

Miss Markel will promptly mail personal answers to questions from any reader inclosing self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope.

Platform Problems Difficult.
Republicans Face Hard Task.
Pensions And Inflation Bothers.

By LESLIE EICHEL

Central Press Staff Writer

CLEVELAND, June 4.—It has been said that nobody reads party platforms. The Republicans this year wish that were quite true. They have difficulty over a platform.

Some months ago the Republicans were denouncing President Roosevelt for departing from the Democratic platform. They probably regret now that they have made a sacred institution of party platforms.

There are many embarrassing questions to which there are no answers.

The Republican party—traditionally the party of business—must appeal also to farmer and to worker to win. Thus the task is to insert platform planks that will be general enough to be all inclusive—yet satisfy.

That would be easy enough (for a politician with any knowledge of language) if the three component elements were not inquisitive—and insistent.

A FEW PLANKS

An attack on government spending will be okay—provided no specific instances are cited. For when one gets to specific instances, a Republican congressman is as loathe to cut off appropriations for his district as is a Democratic congressman.

Upholding the supreme court's power probably is safe enough if the plank is general—but it may not be wise to be too specific on this, either.

If the Republican party gets into power, it does not desire too much of the state's right business. The Republican party always has been the party of federal power. Besides, some shrewd farm and labor lawyers have been reading the constitution and they now say that Article III, Section 2 of the constitution limits the original jurisdiction of the supreme court to matters involving ambassadors and states. In other cases, the supreme court "shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the congress shall make."

There may be a demand for congress to make certain regulations. In fact, the demand may become an issue in regions vitally needed for victory. Thus, a supreme court plank also has a double edge.

AGRICULTURE

Some substitute for the AAA MUST be found. That is the chief order to the platform builders. Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, out in the lead for the presidential nomination, has been consulting with many persons, including men who would be called "brain-trusters" on the other side of the fence—and, if his plank prevails, it is believed that the Republicans will come through on this question satisfactorily.

Notable Nativities—Frank Nathan Buchman, b. 1878, Y.M.C.A. secretary who became leader of the "Oxford" religious movement. —Fontaine Fox, b. 1884, cartoonist. —Toonerville Trolley, etc. —The Keys sisters, Mary, Mona, Roberta and Leota, of Hollis, Okla. b. 1915, oldest quadruplets known to be living in the U. S.

Wedding Anniversary—Fifth: Anne U. "Fifi" Stillman, 57, and Fowler McCormick, 38.

Today's Yesterday's—June 4, 1624—James Herriot was wed to Elizabeth Josey at Bermondsey, Surrey. This is memorable 300 years later only because the bridegroom was one of forty living children of his father.

Another vital statistic appropriate to this date: On June 4, 1866, Clementine Pernon, aged eight, gave birth to a normal child in Puits Close, France.

June 4, 1784—The balloon Le Gustave ascended from Lyons, France, with Count de Laurencin and Mme. Thibault, wife of a wax worker, and gave the latter the historical distinction of being the first woman to make a flight. She volunteered after the Count was unable to find a man willing to risk his neck. They reached 9000 feet, remained up 45 minutes. Mme. Thibault was so moved by the occasion that she sang an operatic selection to the crowd below—the first broadcast.

June 4, 1814—The British Admiralty declared it the government's duty "to discourage the employment of steam vessels as their introduction was calculated to strike a blow at the naval supremacy of the Empire."

June 4 in State Histories: 1792—First Kentucky legislature met at Lexington and chose Frankfort as capital. . . . 1812—Congress created Missouri territory out of Louisiana purchase. . . . 1845—Mexico declared war against U. S. over Texas. . . . 1912—Nation's first minimum wage law was enacted in Massachusetts.

It's True—The War Between the States ended in the Arctic! Late in 1864 the Confederate raider Shenandoah was sent to the Behring sea to destroy Union whalers on the way back to New England with cargoes. The Shenandoah kept right on sinking the whalers long after Lee's surrender, for word of the

PENSIONS—INFLATION

Old age pensions present a ticklish question. Nobody, not even a Borah, favors indorsing a Townsend plan. Yet to prevent the folly of a Townsend plan, indorsement of a federal security act similar to the one passed by the Democratic administration is essential. Indeed, the majority of voters seem to believe the New Dealers have not gone far enough on this. The Republicans, desiring to be the solid, conservative party, do not want to go further than the Democrats. Yet, even the furthest left is not far enough left to bring in the Townsends.

Tied up with the Townsends are the Coughlin inflationists. The Republican party, of all parties, must oppose inflation, any sort, otherwise it has no reason for existence. But in Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, if he remains within the party fold, the Republican party has the nearest to an inflationist of any presidential possibility. And, worse, the Republicans cannot afford to lose this inflationist following, which extends not only through the northwestern farm states but into such dense industrial states as Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Yet party leaders undoubtedly will decide to risk this loss. There is a reason for this surmise.

It must be remembered that Father Coughlin is a silverite and his denunciation of the "dictatorship" in Washington is based on the stand-pat attitude of President Roosevelt against change in the monetary policy. The Republicans are very much with President Roosevelt on this one item—a traditional Republican policy.

After all—the men who are putting up the funds for the Republican party ask—where will the inflationists go, with both the major parties for "sound money"?

CENTRALIZATION

There probably will be no great hullabaloo over centralization. The "danger of centralization" may be a good talking point—it undoubtedly does go in well with "dictatorship"—but in the back of their heads the Republicans are not worried much concerning centralization, if they are to get into power. Large corporations do not desire centralization, for states are not as capable of regulating them as is a powerful central government. The Republicans, however, will be "sane" (they say) if they get into power. Which means, "honest" business may go ahead without interference from the monopolies.

Senator Borah has stirred up the monopoly issue with his continued shouts. He asserts that the Roosevelt administration has permitted the growth of monopoly—and what are the Republicans going to do about it?

Well—maybe this is the age of monopoly. Anyway, we're keeping the government out of business. We are against dictatorship. . . . That's the view.

Then, there are the social questions. And they seem the most difficult of all.

Volant College Reunion Planned

Annual Gathering Of Former Students And Homecoming For Former Residents Arranged

MEMORIALS WILL FEATURE PROGRAM

Arrangements are well under way for the annual Volant College Reunion and Community Day, which will take place on the former campus of the school at Volant, Wednesday, June 24.

Indications point to another large attendance of the former students and residents of the Volant community, one of the features of the program being the memorials which have been projected for the founder of the college, Dr. Asher A. Galbreath, and for Dr. J. B. Bowman, former dean of the college, both of whom passed away during the year.

Dr. S. A. Kirkbride, of New Wilmington, will deliver the memorial to Dr. Bowman, while Frank S. Branneman, of this city, will be in charge of the memorial to Dr. Galbreath.

In addition to these former college officials, many prominent members of the alumni have died during the year, among whom was Attorney Clyde V. Alley, former resident of this city. Rev. Earl Thompson, pastor of the Volant M. E. church will be in charge of the memorials to these former students.

The memorials and the business session of the day will be brief, so that former students and residents will have ample opportunity to enjoy themselves in reminiscing over the old days and in other enjoyments.

The officers of the association are A. Reid English, president; Olive M. Climefelter, secretary; Alex McConachy, treasurer; and Mrs. Scott B. Hamilton, corresponding secretary. Mary Minnehan is chairman of the memorial committee.

DR. EDWARD CAPPS, American professor, of Princeton, is intellectually excited about a highly decorated shield found in an old well in Athens. It may be the shield captured by Athenians from the Spartan General Brasidas at the battle of Pyllos, more than 2,300 years ago.

BRASIDAS was the bravest Spartan in that battle, according to Thucydides, but time passes and interests change. There are 1,000 now in America deeply interested in Joe Louis for one that ever heard of Pyllos' Brasidas, or Thucydides.

GOVERNORS of five British colonies in East Africa meet to discuss the defense of their territory, mainly air defense.

England's colonies, rapidly growing up, soon will outgrow their old mother, living on her little island off the northwest coast of Europe.

They know that an enemy, striking unseen from below the water and above the clouds, might finish his attack on an unprotected country before Mother Britannia could come to help. It will be each country for itself in airplane war.

Buffalo Man Was Returning To Local District To Work For Farmer, Sister Says

Word was received this morning from the police authorities of Buffalo, stating that they had located the sister of Louis Westphal, of Buffalo, who met instant death when he ran in front of a truck driven by Clarence Miller of Sebring, O., near Parkstown Corners, last Friday. She is Mrs. Amelia Carroll, of 105 Kall street, Buffalo.

Mrs. Carroll will be unable to come here and claim the body it is stated, as the family has been on relief and has no money.

Westphal will be buried in the county home plot, today or tomorrow, Coroner Orville Potter stated this morning.

The value of fingerprinting was again shown in this case. Less than a week after the man had been killed, he was identified through his finger prints.

LEGION OF HONOR
WILL HAVE MEETING

Members of the Legion of Honor of the New Castle Consistory will meet this evening at The Cathedral, when they will turn out in large numbers to greet the new Commander-in-Chief of the Consistory, S. Reed Mesum, who will be present on the occasion.

Plans for summer activities will also be discussed at this meeting. Commander Clarence S. Jarrett states.

If they love one another, they are just discussing something when it sounds like quarrelling.

so anxious to get up there? You would see nothing, after you got there."

ANGELS THAT watch us may feel that way about a little group of Englishmen in a race against cold, winds and death, now struggling to reach the top of Mt. Everest in the Himalayas.

The deadly monsoon threatens them, terrific winds hurl the snow against them in heavy sheets, but upward they toil, although there would be nothing to see if they got there.

THE HEIGHT of that mountain amounts to one one-thousandth part of the earth's diameter, and if, after those climbers reach the top, the terrible northwest wind strikes them, they will all die. WHY do they try after so many disastrous failures?

The answer is that it is not in man's nature to give up; that is why he rules the earth and eventually, may rule himself.

WHILE Bruno Richard Hauptmann was waiting to die with occasional reprieves, Charles Zied was waiting for the same electric death in the next cell. The plan was to kill Zied first, then Hauptmann. Hauptmann was reprieved. Zied was reprieved. Hauptmann went to the gloomy electric room and died, now Zied, without advertising or notoriety, has gone the same road.

HE AND Hauptmann used to talk from cell to cell. Will they meet again at the far end of the electric road and again talk? What will Hauptmann have to tell Zied in the way of news, about the place to which murderers go?

IN RUMANIA 500,000 peasants revolt, objecting to a red-haired lady named Magda Lupescu, who has too much influence over the king without being married to him.

The lady cannot understand all the fuss. It does represent a change from old days, when a French king could impoverish his peasants, building the magnificent palaces at Versailles and covering the roads deep with salt, that his friend, to whom he also was not married, could enjoy a sleigh ride in mid-summer; and when the heavy Gabelle, the salt tax, hung so heavily on the poor.

DR. EDWARD CAPPS, American professor, of Princeton, is intellectually excited about a highly decorated shield found in an old well in Athens. It may be the shield captured by Athenians from the Spartan General Brasidas at the battle of Pyllos, more than 2,300 years ago.

BRASIDAS was the bravest Spartan in that battle, according to Thucydides, but time passes and interests change. There are 1,000 now in America deeply interested in Joe Louis for one that ever heard of Pyllos' Brasidas, or Thucydides.

GOVERNORS of five British colonies in East Africa meet to discuss the defense of their territory, mainly air defense.

England's colonies, rapidly growing up, soon will outgrow their old mother, living on her little island off the northwest coast of Europe.

They know that an enemy, striking unseen from below the water and above the clouds, might finish his attack on an unprotected country before Mother Britannia could come to help. It will be each country for itself in airplane war.

Buffalo Man Was Returning To Local District To Work For Farmer, Sister Says

Word was received this morning from the police authorities of Buffalo, stating that they had located the sister of Louis Westphal, of Buffalo, who met instant death when he ran in front of a truck driven by Clarence Miller of Sebring, O., near Parkstown Corners, last Friday. She is Mrs. Amelia Carroll, of 105 Kall street, Buffalo.

Mrs. Carroll will be unable to come here and claim the body it is stated, as the family has been on relief and has no money.

Westphal will be buried in the county home plot, today or tomorrow, Coroner Orville Potter stated this morning.

The value of fingerprinting was again shown in this case. Less than a week after the man had been killed, he was identified through his finger prints.

Message Is Sent To New Castle Residents From Newcastle, Eng.

On its maiden voyage across the Atlantic ocean to New York City, the S. S. Queen Mary bore a message of greeting and good will to the mayor and residents of New Castle, Pa., from the lord mayor and people of the city in Great Britain for which this municipality was named.

This message, which speaks volumes for the sentiment and friendly relations between the two places, and between the two nations, was formally presented by messenger Robert Stitt of the Western Union Telegraph company to Mayor Charles E. McGrath, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. John Lienert of the Lawrence Savings and Trust Travel Department, agents for the Cunard White Star line at this point, and L. R. Mardis, local manager for Western Union, took part in the ceremony. The presentation had its counterpart in a number of other places named for English towns and cities who took advantage of this occasion to express their regards to their namesake towns.

The message received here was as follows:

Lord Mayor's Chamber
Town Hall
New Castle upon Tyne
23rd May, 1936.

My dear Mr. Mayor:
On behalf of the Council and Citizens of Newcastle upon Tyne I send cordial greetings to Your Worship, the Mayoress, the Council and the Citizens of Newcastle, Pennsylvania, U. S. A., and I gladly avail myself of this opportunity of forwarding my message by the R. M. S. "Queen Mary" (thorough of the courtesy of the Cunard-White Star Company) on the occasion of her maiden voyage across the Atlantic.

We on Tyneside earnestly wish a full measure of happiness and prosperity for the people of our namesake City of Newcastle, Pennsylvania.

Believe me,
Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM LOCKE,
Lord Mayor.

The Worshipful,
The Mayor of New Castle,
Pennsylvania, U. S. A.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Supreme Court Issue Delayed

Climax Hoped For By Republicans Is Being Staved Off By Democrats

SPECULATE ON FUTURE COURSE

Central Press Washington Bureau June 4.—The question whether or not the federal supreme court's power should be curtailed clearly will not be fought over during the national campaign just beginning.

The Republicans would like to have the issue raised, with their party on the negative side of it, because their managerial group believes that a majority of Americans are opposed to a stricter limitation of judicial authority. However, they can't make it an issue, with themselves on the negative side, unless the Democrats come out affirmatively. And the Democrats are too crafty to commit themselves.

President Roosevelt evidently agrees with the Republicans that a proposal to hamstring the "nine old men" would be unpopular. Consequently, much to the G. O. P.'s annoyance, he discreetly refrains from declaring for such a policy.

DELAY SOUGHT
It would seem as if the New Dealers MUST want the supreme court's power further restricted.

The court has knocked their legislative program into pretty much of a cocked hat, by holding so many of its essential features unconstitutional. Yet it is understandable that the administration may prefer to wait until it is safely in office again, for another four years, before precipitating a doubtful struggle.

There are even radicals, like Senator George W. Norris (a Republican but a New Dealer), who argue that the showdown should be delayed until after next November.

RULE CAN BE MODIFIED

The supreme court's rule can be modified in four different fashions.

1. It can be done by a constitutional amendment—a slow process, requiring two-thirds vote in each house of congress, with affirmation by three-quarters of the states' legislatures.

2. It can be done by a general convention to amend the constitution. There never has been one since the original constitution's adoption, nor is one likely.

3. Congress can, by legislative act, regardless of the court's wishes, increase the number of justices, enabling the president to make enough New Deal appointments to outvote the anti-New Deal justices. That is not a probability, either.

4. Of the "nine old men" on the federal bench six are VERY old. If President Roosevelt is re-elected it is reasonable to assume that there will be several deaths or retirements within the next four years, and it will be simple to fill their seats with New Dealers.

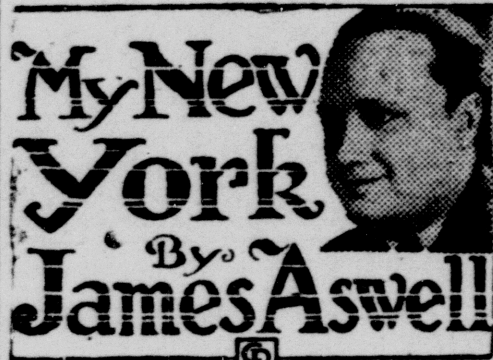

But the oldest of the nine, and therefore the most precarious of the liberal outfit, is Justice Louis D. Brandeis. If he drops out, the likeliest candidate to follow him is Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas. Any liberal who reckons that Senator Robinson will be a supreme court liberal certainly is an optimist.

WILL IT LIBERALIZE?
The query, then, is: Suppose the administration really gets a chance to liberalize the supreme bench—will it do it?

HAS ARM BROKEN TWICE IN AUTO BUS
(International News Service)

AKRON, O., June 4.—Mrs. Lillian Harley was somewhat impatient when her arm was broken once by a bus of an Akron transportation company but when the offense was repeated restraint gave way entirely.

The woman filed suit for $7,000, charging that just as her left arm was healing from one fracture caused by a bus, a driver closed a door on the injured member, breaking it all over again.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The gossip groups are insisting that Helen Willis Moody has wielded her racket for the last time in important match play. She has forsaken tennis, they insist, for domesticity and her palette and brushes.

Critics say her work, recently exhibited here at a "one-man show" in the Grand Central Palace galleries, has dynamic merit. She may win as many laurels as a dauber as she garnered on the hard courts of Wimbledon. And they may be a bit more lasting as accolades go. It interests me that Mrs. Moody, the most ingratiating and feminine of the lady athletes (besides being the best looking of the bunch) rarely paints anything except still life studies. The verve and gallop of action on the courts interests her not at all, but she can work herself into an artistic swivel over a bunch of asparagus, two red apples and a cauliflower.

Her early work leaned toward action. Now she paints only scenes revealing what Va. Gogh once referred to as "leaping repose." She likes parties, likes people, likes to stay up late. The Sassy Set would lionize her if she gave them half a chance.

Helen is never to be seen fraternizing with the Greenwich Village crackpot club. It is significant that, although she has embraced Art, her friends remain old favorites of tennis days; they were the first to be invited to her exhibition; people like Vincent Richards, Watson Washburn and William T. Tilden, 3rd. She is to be saluted as a member in good standing of the Likable Ladies Society.

The case of the Count of Covadonga, son of former King Alfonso and heir-apparent to the vacant throne of Spain, is full of genuine pathos. He is a sufferer, as you probably know, from that rare and terrible kingly malady, hemophilia—a disease characterized by failure of the blood to clot; victims can bleed to death after a nick while shaving.

I met and interviewed the beautiful wife of the Count in Florida a year or two ago. Braving his father's wrath and the dire implication of marriage for any sufferer from hemophilia, he eloped with the dark-eyed Cuban beauty—a commoner—only to undergo twenty blood transfusions in rapid succession.

Pale, thin, walking with a slight limp, he is to be seen occasionally in the lobby of the St. Moritz, where he lives, or whisking away from the door in a sleek foreign car. But the count is not rich. He gets an allowance from his father, but most of it goes in doctor's fees and nursing expense.

The other day he decided to get himself a job. He is an expert mechanic, having once supervised 250 automobiles on the royal estates in Spain. He can take a car down and put it back together, piece by piece, and have no parts left over. So he applied to one of the glittering Park Avenue salons which offers strange broughams and runabouts from across the Atlantic.

He got a job instantly. His knowledge of motors was already known to the head of the firm and he was employed strictly on his own merits as a technical adviser. Flushed with happiness, the count promised to report for work next morning.

But that night, so the story goes, he suffered a slight abrasion on his right foot and had to telephone that he wouldn't be in for work the first day. His bad luck, which has really been phenomenal, had done him in again.

Random foolishness: A correspondent sends a clipping from a country weekly, which, somehow, I can't but think is spoofing: "Grammer learned all comers, Prof. Spindley, 50 cents per each lesson."

On Court House Hill

Commissions as notary public have been recorded at the register and recorder's office for Miss Elizabeth McDevitt, of this city and George B. Wilson of Ellwood City.

The court has been asked to set a date for a hearing on an application of the North Side community church for a charter. Incorporators are J. M. Cattrell, J. W. Miller, Verne E. Webber, Mrs. Clara Wilkins, Samuel Shaffer, and Mrs. E. Cattrell. Property of the organization consists of a lot on Glenmore boulevard and a temporary tabernacle erected on land leased from B. K. Hoover on the New Castle-New Wilmington road, just outside the city limits.

According to grand jury reports the county buildings are in a clean and sanitary condition. The jury made an inspection of the buildings, including the county jail at the conclusion of service here this week. A new carpet was recommended for the law library, and some papering and other repairs at the juvenile detention home.

Purchase of the David C. Boyles property, adjoining the court house, provided that it can be obtained at a reasonable price, was recommended by the grand jury this week. The proposition of purchasing this property has been considered for a long time. During Mr. Boyles' life-time he refused to sell and the county did not feel like condemning it.

It is now in the hands of the executor of his estate, and will likely be offered for sale, although no price has been placed upon it. Some of the court house officials say it is a debatable question, whether it would be better to purchase this property or erect an addition to the north side of the court house. It would depend largely upon the price of the property as compared with the proposed addition.

The county is now paying rent for rooms occupied by the judges, the district attorney, superintendent of schools and the welfare department. The rent which is paid would go a long way toward paying the carrying charges, either on the Boyles property or on a new addition. There is also a question as to how much would have to be spent in re-modeling the Boyles property, if it is purchased. It is believed that it could be heated with the present heating plant, but it would need considerable new plumbing, wiring, and other repairs. One advantage of this property would be that it would give plenty of parking space, which is badly needed when court is in session.

John D. Seever, who is undergoing life imprisonment in the Western penitentiary for the murder of his wife, Stella Seever, will be brought from the penitentiary to the Lawrence county jail next week preparatory to the disposition of a case against him in which he is charged with the murder of his sister-in-law, Catherine Rodgers.

Mrs. Rodgers was shot at the same time that Seever shot his wife, but he was tried and convicted on the latter charge. Recently his attorney presented a petition in court asking that the indictment for murdering Catherine Rodgers be quashed, to which District Attorney Mont L. Ailey objected, and his objection was sustained by the court.

It is planned to bring Seever here and give him an opportunity to plead guilty to the Rodgers charge, should he so desire. If he does not conclude to enter a plea, he will probably be tried. If he goes to trial there would be no assurance that the same kind of a verdict would be brought in as was done in the case in which he was charged with murdering his wife.

Seever is anxious to have the Rodgers case hanging over him in case the pardon board decide to grant him a pardon or parole. As the case now stands, even if he were pardoned he could be brought back here and be tried for the Rodgers murder.

CALL MEETING
Special meeting of the Lawrence County Democratic league has been called by General Chairman Joseph Clavelli for Knights of St. Vitus hall at 7:30 p. m., June 5, according to Corresponding Secretary Michael Clavelli.

Muskingum Head Speaker

CONVENTION HERE
THURSDAY, JUNE 18

ROBERT N. MONTGOMERY

A splendid program has been prepared for the 98th convention of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association which is to be held at the Epworth M. E. church, New Castle, Thursday, June 18. The program participants are of an unusually high order and includes:

Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, who has just returned from an extensive tour of Russia, Palestine, Germany, Italy and other foreign lands and he will bring an inspiring Christian message and will interpret present day economic and political conditions in European countries gained from his recent travels.

The representative of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association will be Rev. E. H. Bonsall, State Young People's superintendent, and he will discuss the problems facing the youth of our land today.

The convention sermon will be delivered by Rev. A. J. Randles, D.D., who is secretary of the United Presbyterian Board of Publication and Bible School Work. Dr. Randles was formerly pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church of this city. The convention sermon will deal largely with the convention theme: "Christ For All and All For Christ."

The children's division specialist who will address two sessions of the convention is Mrs. John M. Bailey, director of children's work for the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association and supervisor of the North Boroughs week-day school of religion of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Bailey has had a wide practical experience with children's work and her messages will prove most helpful. The temperance phase of Sabbath school work will be discussed by Prof. W. L. Rainey, temperance superintendent of Butler county, and Mrs. J. J. Fredericks will give a missionary message.

Both noon and evening meals will be served by the ladies of the convention church to those making reservations and at the afternoon session two awards will be presented to the ladies' adult classes having the best attendance, and at the evening session two awards will be presented to the men's adult classes having the best attendance.

The morning session starts at 9 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, with the registration; the afternoon session at 1 o'clock and the evening session at 7:30 o'clock.

In connection with the evening fellowship dinner, the young people of the county will furnish a special musical program and the young people will also conduct the evening devotionals.

The song leader of the convention is John W. Owens and the theme song will be "Jesus Is the Sweetest Name I Know."

The Festival will be organized and directed through the Adult Education and Recreation Divisions of the W. P. A. of Lawrence County and will be held at Ben Franklin Auditorium on Friday night, June 19, at 8 o'clock.

The aim and purpose are to give an opportunity to all nationality groups to assist in the rehabilitation program by giving their time and talent in a presentation of their characteristic songs and dances.

Already, Spanish, Italian, German, Welsh, Croatian and colored groups have signified their willingness to take part and the plans of other groups will be announced in a few days. It is anticipated that some 300 people, representing at least twelve different nationalities, will take part.

Numbers already on the program include the Welsh chorus singing, "Huddersfield," a Spanish Rhumba, a Croatian string ensemble, Hawaiian guitars and the Italian "Taranella." The well known W. P. A. orchestra, under the direction of Ben Shulansky, will furnish the music for the entertainment.

The Red Cross will provide a five minute speaker to explain the purpose and use of a collection which will be taken by them.

Admission will be free but no one under 16 will be admitted.

Supreme Court May Be Campaign Issue

By GEORGE BURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The supreme court was on a fair way to becoming a major campaign issue this summer and fall—with the Democrats taking the offensive rather than the Republicans.

President Roosevelt had intimated he was out to recapture the "no man's land" established by the court's latest decision—that nullifying the New York State minimum wage law—wherein no government is permitted to function.

This can be done only by constitutional amendment. Developments were shaping up rapidly to indicate that Mr. Roosevelt may press for such an amendment as one of the big talking points of his campaign for re-election.

Up to the time of the decision knocking out New York's minimum wage law for women, Republican strategists had been rather jubilant over the series of supreme court rulings voiding such integral features of the Roosevelt administration as NRA, AAA and the Guffey coal act. In each, the highest tribunal had held that congress had no authority to invade the field of what the court regarded as states' rights.

The latest decision obviously dismayed G. O. P. leaders, however, holding as it did that the states likewise have no authority to regulate wages. At the same time Mr. Roosevelt was coining his "no man's land" phrase as a companion piece to his earlier "horse-and-buggy days" appellation, Rep. Hamilton Fish (R) of New York, was proposing a constitutional amendment giving the states the right to regulate minimum wages for women and children. Fish, who has been espousing Senator William E. Borah's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, challenged the Democrats to pass it at this session and submit it immediately to the states for ratification.

House majority leader Bankhead, of Alabama, and Rep. Boileau (P) of Wisconsin, promptly indicated which way the wind was blowing on their side of the fence by countering with a suggestion that congress be given the right to regulate all wages, men, women and children alike. Fish said he didn't believe the south would stand for this and he didn't want to confuse the immediate issue.

Mr. Roosevelt, meanwhile, had commended the majority and minority opinions in all the major cases to the general public for careful study. They are of very great interest to everyone in the United States, he asserted.

If, the president asked, neither the states nor the federal government can function as a result of these rulings, who can?

Prospects were the would undertake a vigorous answer to his own question during the months between now and election day.

Court Must Decide 'Wet' Or 'Dry' Case

Specified In Old Deed For Vandergrift, Pa., That Town Is To Be Dry

(International News Service)

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., June 4.—The state supreme court eventually may decide whether this borough is to be "wet" or "dry."

Under the deeds for the land on which the borough was built it was specified that it was to remain "dry." Consequently, the State Liquor Control Board has refused to grant licenses to retail vendors but at the same time opened a state liquor store there.

James Nick Cheris, proprietor of a restaurant, carried an appeal to the county courts in attempting to break the ancient covenant. He was refused by Judge Charles D. Cope land who upheld the action of the State Liquor Control Board in refusing retail licenses but at the same time termed the opening of a state store there "a grave mistake."

Cheris announced that he has instructed his attorneys to carry an appeal to the state's highest court. Cheris said he believes the basis of an appeal lies in his contention the old "Sahara" deeds prohibited only the sale of liquor but made no mention of the issuance of licenses.

Rate Fixed For Land Contracts

Soil Conservation Payments In Lawrence County To Be $11.60 Per Acre

The average rate of Class 1, or soil-conserving, payment in Lawrence county under the terms of the 1936 Agricultural Conservation program will be $11.60 an acre, H. L. McCurley, chairman of the county committee has announced. The rate for each individual farm will depend on the way the productivity of the farm compares with the average productivity of all the farms in the county.

Class 1 payments will be made this year to farmers who divert some of their acreage of soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving crops. Mr. McCurley points out that farmers who elect to do this will receive the class 1 rate for their farms for each acre diverted, up to 15 percent of their soil-depleting base acreage.

For the whole country, the average county rate of the class 1 payment is $10 an acre.

The county rate for diverting soil-depleting crops, he said, was based on the productivity of all farms of the county, taking into account average yields of the principal soil-depleting crops over a period of years.

Rates of the class 1 payments, for using approved soil-building practices, already have been announced. Mr. McCurley said that a farmer may qualify for either or both types of payment, provided he measures up to the standards of the program and fills out a work sheet covering his land. County and community committees now are helping farmers fill out work sheets and are receiving them.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

JEALOUSY CONQUERED

The other day I read in my local paper an account of honors which had come to a colleague. I dislike to confess it, but I had a deal of ugly feeling which moved up from the pit of my stomach. As is usually the case when jealousy seizes one, I had this feeling and the complicated feeling which grew out of it, for several minutes before I recognized what was happening.

Then remembering what I have written to parents on ways and means to reduce jealousies in their children, I resolved to write or telephone this colleague to congratulate him. But I did not. A day passed, when I chanced to meet him at the university I succeeded then in mustering up enough sportsmanship and moral character to seize him by the hand, look him in the eye and tell him with enthusiasm that I had read the news item about him and was delighted with it. I probably cannot accurately report my actual experiences, but I am morally certain that by the time I seized his hand I did have a genuinely altruistic and enthusiastic feeling about the matter. More certain I am, however, that after the little ceremony, I felt a glow of something which I cannot describe. Perhaps it approached a truly generous feeling of unselfish pleasure over his successes; and I have felt so much happier since. I hope I can practice in this art more often. If I am able to keep at it, that green-eyed monster won't get me quite so often nor so forcefully.

EVIDENCES OF JEALOUSY

Perhaps you never sank so low in the human scale. Yet you and I see daily very eloquent evidences of jealousy all about us, and among those with the highest sort of education, achievement and "cultural acceptance."

Consider the havoc induced by jealousies in the common walks of life—the home, the shop, the factory, the office, the church, the school and college. How many a department in college or graduate school is wrecked by jealousies. And many a career is entirely ruined on its account; we see it on every level of intelligence.

By beginning on ourselves, honestly, we ought to have enough genius and character to do something about this matter. We should not, of course, expect too much by way of progress, yet feel encouraged with the slightest gains.

Adult Education Program Planned

Job Bureau's New Classes To Be Guided By Dr. Green, School Head

OFFERED TO PUBLIC; NO WPA CONNECTION

First steps had been taken here today to launch an adult education program for unemployed and employed persons, 16 years of age and over, who desire to develop themselves for certain types of skilled positions in business and industry. It was learned at the Federal-State Employment office in the Johnson building.

Within the past few days, H. N. Cooley, education advisor of the Pennsylvania department of education at Harrisburg, has been conferring with local private employers and with Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of schools, and Edward D. Reese, district supervisor of the Federal-State Employment service in connection with the instruction plans.

The new program will provide special vocational training for selected commercial and technical positions and manual occupations, in order to meet future demands for such workers.

In discussing the present employment situation, Reese said: "It is a well known fact that during the past several depression years there has existed a state of inertia in the training and development of skilled workers and as a consequence we are confronted with a shortage of qualified applicants in certain white-collar and manual occupations. The adult education program now being sponsored by the department of public instruction offers a timely solution of this problem. To insure its success, however, will require the whole-hearted cooperation of all those agencies whose interests are involved, namely, the employer who desires to employ competent people, the individual who aims towards self-development and progress in his or her job and those in our educational system who work in the interests of parents and students alike to the end that the school system has done its part in the early development of the future wage earner."

The adult education program in the city of New Castle will be directed and supervised by Dr. Green in cooperation with private employers and the Federal-State employment service. Under the direction of Dr. Green it is assured that really worthwhile results will be accomplished. This program has no connection with the WPA, nor does it conflict with the educational classes now being conducted by the WPA.

First Class June 10

The first of these training classes is now being organized and will give instruction in the duties of a legal secretary-stenographer. Attorney Joseph R. McFate has been named instructor and it is planned to commence the class on the evening of June 10 at the Senior high school with a group of not more than 15 graduate stenographers. Arrangements are being made through Dr. Green to have available for the class the commercial department equipment so as to avoid any expense on the part of the individual trainees. Attorney McFate is now preparing an outline of the course of study and plans to conduct the training program in a manner approximating as nearly as possible the actual duties of a legal secretary-stenographer in the average law office. "Such training," said Mr. McFate, "should reasonably well qualify those who complete the course, for positions as legal stenographers."

Mr. Cooley informed local interested groups that additional classes in special training would be organized as rapidly as possible.

Night School During Summer

High school graduates who wish to review subjects during the summer months will have an opportunity to do so in the W. P. A. night school classes offered at North Street school.

Mrs. Martha Saum, a graduate of Bethany college, offers courses in English on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The classes meet at 7:00 p. m. and are free to everyone, whether employed or not. It was also announced by E. V. Martin, project head of education, that if there is sufficient demand, classes will be organized for other subjects.

Woman Faces Trial For Complicity In Husband's Murder

Warren, Pa., Woman Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned On Charges

(International News Service)

WARREN, Pa., June 4—The murder trial of Mrs. Metro Semink, charged with complicity in the slaying of her husband in front of his gasoline station near Youngsville, Pa., March 27, was under way here today with the jury yet to be completed.

Mrs. Semink was indicted with two men for the fatal shooting of her husband as he pumped gasoline into an automobile. Joe Senauskas, 19, former Cleveland resident, and John Polens, 31, Duquesne university graduate, yesterday entered pleas of guilty, thus throwing themselves on the mercy of the court.

Selection of a jury to try Senauskas, charged with being the "trigger man" for the trio, was under way before the youth decided to change his plea from not guilty.

Judge D. U. Aird, presiding, said he would pass sentences on the pair next week after hearing testimony to determine their degree of guilt.

Gayly attired in a light pink dress and white gloves, Mrs. Semink entered court at the side of her counsel, A. Lincoln Cohen, and pleaded not guilty in a low, confident voice.

At preliminary hearings, Senauskas was quoted by state police as saying Polens paid him $150 for killing Semink. Mrs. Semink, according to the police, was charged with giving Polens the money to buy her husband's death.

Court attaches expressed the belief testimony in the case would begin at today's session.

MAKE SLOW PROGRESS IN SPECIAL SESSION

Little Action In Session As Yet

Temporary Relief For May And June Practically Only Accomplishment

HEAVY SCHEDULES CONFRONT SESSION

By A. NORMAN GAGE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, June 4.—After five weeks of debating unemployment relief, the legislature today looked upon the temporary appropriation of $7,500,000 as its principal achievement in disposing of the special session's major problem.

Both houses, in the face of heavy work schedules, definitely abandoned plans to adjourn for the Republican national convention next week.

Summoned to provide relief for the eight months ending next January 31, the Democratic-controlled House and Republican-led Senate have agreed upon appropriations which may not be sufficient to carry the relief load to the end of this month.

Transfer Funds

The money, in two allocations of $3,630,000 and $4,931,211, has been made available to the state emergency relief board by transferring it from special funds, to be repaid later. A bill to legalize the smaller transfer has been enacted, and signed by Governor Earle, a bill to supplement the emergency resolution transferring the other $4,931,211 has not been started toward enactment.

Beyond this state, the embattled branches of the legislature have made no progress toward agreeing upon and enacting the heavy schedule of work which the governor outlined in his call and his message to the lawmakers. Most of the administration-sponsored bills are in the Senate after being passed by the House. A few, including the proposed one-cent increase in the state gasoline tax and higher license fees for trucks and heavy trailers, remain in the House committees.

Administration measures to provide and finance flood control surveys and projects are on the House calendar, available for final action next week.

Revenue bills to raise the $80,000,000 which Governor Earle estimates is necessary for relief and other emergency expenses until the 1937 regular session convenes, are scattered through both branches, but none has been enacted to support appropriations approved to date.

Farthest advanced is the administration's bill to put a 10 per cent tax on liquor and wine bought at state stores. It has been passed by the House, is on the Senate's second reading calendar for Monday and may be enacted Tuesday.

It would provide $7,500,000, approximately the amount appropriated for relief during May and June.

Bills to raise an additional $57,000,000 are held by Senate committees after passing the House. They include the $4,000,000 fuel oil tax proposal which was not on the administration's original program.

An administration bill to raise $5,000,000 by a tax of three-fourths mill per kilowatt hour on electricity is ready for final house action next week. So, too, is an independently sponsored one per cent flat rate personal income tax bill, now amended to earmark 98 per cent of the revenue for school relief.

Just starting through the House is another independent proposal to raise $1,000,000 by a 50 per cent tax on fines and penalties imposed by public utility companies for late payment of consumer bills.

The principal obstacle in the path of all these revenue bills continues to be the inability of Democratic and Republican leaders to compromise on the amount of money required to carry relief until next January 31. Until this agreement is reached, final legislative action on tax measures will be held in abeyance.

But, with Democrats asking for $70,991,000 and Republicans standing firmly on their $45,000,000 estimate, this problem is as far from solution as it was when the legislature convened on May 4.

A woman is a person who can look at a new baby and not be reminded of a worm or something.

Union High Seniors Admit Their Mistake

After a conference with Principal W. M. Leonard of the Union township high school on Wednesday afternoon, seniors of the class of June 1936 disclosed the full story of the painting of the building on Monday night, admitted the prank was a mistake and arranged for restitution.

"The boys were sportsmen," said Mr. Leonard. "We met in one of the rooms in the school and I endeavored to impress them with the seriousness of the situation. I explained that if the damage were repaired that no other action would be taken and that it would be the part of manliness for them to admit their part in the affair. The innocent of the class were suffering as well as the guilty and in justice to themselves and to the class the thing to do was get the matter straightened out."

"This they agreed to do. The boys involved in the painting episode admitted their part and said that they would make arrangements to pay for the damage. A proposal will be laid before the school board and I feel sure that the board will agree to the proposal and consider the episode closed."

Tucker, for 59 years a member of the Cambridge grange in Mercer county, now a resident of Lawrence county, gave.

Crowds Expected To Watch As

Lawrence county's annual competitive Boy Scout camporee to be held in newly developed Cunningham Park on Friday and Saturday, June 12 and 13, promises to attract a throng of New Castle spectators this year.

The park's close proximity to the residential section is expected to make possible the attendance of larger groups of citizens than ever attended a camporee at Camp John M. Phillips.

Boy Scout troop patrols pushed their preparations at top speed today, polishing up here and there on weak points which may become determining factors in the events at the park next week.

The purpose of the camporee, scout leaders again explained, is to promote skill in the fundamentals of good patrol camping by having patrols camp on a common camp ground and meet standard practices in a program which includes packing, cooking, hiking, sanitation, rest, tent pitching, discipline and leadership.

WAKE UP, MAX—Max Schmeling is getting his sleep now, and doesn't want any the night of June 18 when he meets Joe Louis.

Schmeling Is Not Afraid Of Louis

German Fighter In Great Physical Condition—Weighs 194 Pounds

Willing To Bet That He Dumps Mister Joe Louis On The Canvas

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NAPANOCH, N. Y., June 4.—Win, lose or draw, Max Schmeling today promised the fight fans they would see him dump Joe Louis at least once on the seat of his slaken pants, and so confident is he of accomplishing the feat, he's willing to bet on it.

"Remember," cautioned the German fighter, "I don't say I knock him out, but I do say for sure I put him on the floor and maybe there he stays. I feel sure I win that I am making a little bet on myself for the first time."

In Fine Shape
Tanned and a vicious looking 194 pounds from his five weeks of outdoor training in the Shawangunk hills, Max today admitted he is in true fighting condition for the first time in his life.

"Before I always make mistake by doing no road work. Now I know better. Now I do six, seven mile every day and a new Schmeling everybody will see. I don't feel so good since I am a boy yet."

Max said he felt he owed American fans something for the disappointing fight he made with Max Baer. He shook his head in wonder as he recalled that one, "How a much fighter like that Baer hits me with a sucker punch is more as I can understand. You betcha Joe Louis won't do that to me."

Physical Condition Good

Max's physical condition may be dismissed in one word—perfect. Wind good, legs strong, timing good. More than that may not be said truthfully of any fighter in training for it takes the white hot warfare of the ring to expose any defect in a fighting man's armor.

So let's dismiss Max's physical status and move on to something of far more importance—especially to any prospective opponent of Joe Louis—and that's the mental condition.

Here we find Schmeling so far ahead of Max Baer and the others who were mentally licked before they started, that there is no comparison.

Is Not Afraid

You will see no cringing, chavens, nerve-shaken travesty of a fighting man in the corner opposite Joe Louis the night of June 18. Far from it. This German has far too much at stake to show a white feather even if he were so inclined.

"Afraid?" queries Max in a puzzled way when the subject is broached. "For why should one human being be afraid of another? Of the punches? Of a knockout? Bah. I have been hit hundreds of knock punches and I have been knocked out and the harm is nothing."

"What would they say in Germany if I should be a coward here? Do you think I would dare to go back home? Nein, nein."

Giants Are In Pennant Fight, Defeat Cubs

Cardinals Hold To Three-Game Lead By Trimming Dodgers

PIRATES FOLD UP TO BOSTON

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 4.—At their worst the New York Giants can be pretty terrible, but at their best they look every bit the part of contenders for the National League pennant, and might yet settle down to becoming the club the Cards will have to beat out.

That's assuming that St. Louis is headed for the World Series, which seems to be the general impression. The Giants flounder in the depths one day with wobbly pitching and in all around haywire performance and soar the next time out, as they did yesterday when everything clicked and they beat back Chicago's Cubs.

Giants Top Cubs
The Giants kept pace with the league-leading Cardinals, who also won, by bunching three hits in the first inning for three runs that won, by bunching three hits in the first inning for three runs that were enough. Hal Schumacher gave the Cubs a single in each of three innings and took the game, 3 to 0.

Curt Davis, the ex-Phil lately transferred to Chicago, was the victim.

The Cardinals clung to their three-game margin by turning back the Dodgers, 7 to 3, with Tarzan Parnelle in the box. Stu Martin, the Cards' new and sprightly second sacker, who is making the fans forget Frankie Frisch himself, made three hits, including a double and triple which figured in the scoring.

Pirates Throttled
In the only other National League game the Boston Bees went 11 innings to a 4 to 3 win over the Pirates. Reis and Urbanski singled the tying and winning runs over, and the former got credit for the victory.

Joe DiMaggio hit in his 16th straight game—a triple this time with the bases loaded—as the Yankees continued at the top of the American loop standings, with a 11 to 1 victory over the White Sox. Red Ruffing allowed only five scattered hits.

Cleveland Loses
Wes Ferrell hurled his seventh win of the season for the Red Sox, 4 to 2, to make it two straight over the Indians, who started Johnny Allen and wound up with Winegarner.

The Senators beat the Browns, 7 to 4, as Newsom turned in his sixth victory, and the A's collected 14 hits in downing the Tigers, 14 to 7.

GUM-DIPPED TIRES
WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

Last Saturday Louis Meyer broke the track record, at 109 miles per hour, driving the entire race without tire trouble of any kind. He is the only driver ever to win the race three times, and has always used Firestone Tires.

No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds on the hot brick track, lap after lap, hour after hour. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection and safety.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection.

Profit by the experience of race drivers. Equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—it costs so little to protect lives worth so much.

subsidies which are being provided through three specific methods.

following manner:

1. Payments of direct cash bounties by German industrial associations;

first to cameras, china tableware,

CAPITAL MOURNS
SUDDEN DEATH OF
SPEAKER OF HOUSE

the Mayflower hotel shortly after midnight this morning after being stricken by two cerebral hemorrhages.He was surrounded by members of his immediate family and his long-standing friend, Rep. Sam Mc-
Reynolds of Tennessee.
President Roosevelt was shocked by the news when informed of the passing of the speaker, a powerful
dispatched a message of condolence to the widow.The speaker's death created tremendous political confusion in the house over selection of his successor. It was the first time in the nation's history that a speaker has died during a session of congress.The resulting confusion not only involved the speakership but a complete realignment of the house leadership.

Popular Speaker.

Few speakers have been more popular with the rank and file of the house than Byrns. He invited his friends to call him "Uncle Joe."

His broad smile and hearty hand-shake were real. Tears welled into the eyes of house pages as they discussed the death of "Uncle Joe."

The speaker had suffered from heart trouble for several years. Because of this, his wife carefully watched over him and made every effort to curtail his attendance at social functions and political gatherings.

Under Byrns' leadership the house made an unparalleled record as an arm of the Roosevelt administration.

The speaker's death was peaceful.

After a busy day at the capitol, he returned to his apartment at the Mayflower feeling "tired" but not ill.He was seated in a restful armchair, talking to Mrs. Byrns, when he suffered the first stroke.

His head fell forward on his chest.

He slumped in the chair. Alarmed,

Mrs. Byrns immediately summoned

Dr. Everett M. Ellison, a physician residing in the hotel. The doctor worked over the speaker a few minutes, revived him and put him to bed.He said later he realized the speaker's condition was "quite serious".

Suffers Second Stroke.

Dr. George W. Calver, capitol

physician who frequently attended the speaker, was summoned. He tooregarded the speaker's condition as "serious" but expressed hopes he would recover.

Just after midnight, the speaker suffered a second stroke. It left him unconscious. In 15 minutes he was dead. At the bedside were Mrs.Byrns, two brothers and Rep. Mc-Reynolds.Congressman Byrns was elected speaker of the house when the 74th congress assembled a year ago last January. During the preceding re-cess, Speaker Rainey had died.

Byrns won this coveted post almost without opposition. In addition, he had served several terms as chairman of the Democratic congressional committee.

The speaker married Miss Julia

Woodward of Nashville in 1898.

They had one son, Joseph W. Byrns,
Jr. Besides them, the speaker wassurvived by two brothers, John Byrns and Miles J. Byrns, who wereat the bedside, and by two sisters, Mrs. C. B. Wilson of Honolulu and Mrs. C. B. Benedict of Birmingham.

The bazaar and entertainment which opened Tuesday evening in the Armory will end this evening. Another big crowd is expected present for the program of entertainment, which has been held to raise funds for the summer encampment which takes place the last two weeks of the month at Indian town Gap, when the entire cavalry regiment will be present for the annual maneuvers.

Friday evening, the troop members will stage a polo game at West Middlesex as a part of the Centennial celebration which the little Mercer county village is staging this week. The troop horses will be trucked to the scene.

Saturday at noon, an overnight hike to the rifle range at East Brook will be started. The troop will bivouac at the range over night, returning Sunday. This will take the place of the Sunday drill session.

One of the features of the summer encampment this year will be a series of polo matches between the different troops for the state guard championship. While the lo-

Wheatland Drops Injunction Suit

(Special To The News)

MERCER, June 4.—The injunction proceedings in which the borough of Wheatland was complainant and the city of Farrell defendant, with the proceedings based on the building of a sewage disposal plant by Farrell near the Wheatland line had been dropped, it is stated today by court officials. A preliminary injunction was secured by signature of Judge George Rowley last week by Wheatland, stopping the construction of the plans which had not been started yet. A time of final hearing was set for May 30, at 1:30 p. m. This hearing was not held because of the dropping of the action in the interim.

An agreement was reached between parties ensue in the interim, it is learned.

AROUND CITY HALL

Persons who become intoxicated and land often before His Honor the mayor are discovering that he suits action to words. As a result several city owned plots have been cleaned. In lieu of a fine Mayor Charles E. McGrath imposes a work sentence on the prisoners. Almost daily a squad of several is sent to some plot to rid it of tin cans, rubbish and other unsightly material.

Building operations during May month are estimated to have cost $11,750.00. Included in this is new and old construction. One house is being built at a cost of $2,000 and a $4,500 service station is under way. Eight garages are estimated to cost $1,965 and fences cost $295. Remodelling of 11 dwellings cost $3,210 and a small repair job at a local building cost $50.

It is gratifying to know that the city of New Castle is practically free of contagion. There are a few cases of scarlet fever and whooping cough but these patients will soon be out of quarantine. The city has been free for years of smallpox. Typhoid fever has seldom been reported during the past few years and in most cases the origin was other than in New Castle. Very few cases of diphtheria have been reported to city health authorities this year.

Sharon's radio station went on the air for the first time yesterday and will be connected with the local station. Sharon's call is WQFU and New Castle's WPGT. Sharon will also put two cruiser cars in operation. Franklin and Massillon are also linked to this city by radio.

Double Enters Plea To Murder Charge

Tells Court He Is Guilty Of Slaying Sister, 73, Of Slippery Rock

BUTLER, Pa., June 14.—William E. Double, 53, New Kensington carpenter, stood calmly before Judge John H. Wilson in criminal court Wednesday, and in a clear voice, pleaded guilty to a charge of murdering out of the brutal slaying of his sister, Mrs. Laura Double Kelly, 73, on her Worth township farm, near Slippery Rock last March 30.

The body of Mrs. Kelly was found on her farm the night of last April 1, when Double's son and son-in-law went to the Kelly farm to search for him after they had found his automobile abandoned in front of the Double home in New Kensington.

Double was suspected of the crime and was arrested in Washington, D. C. April 6, and returned to Butler. Following the return of a true bill of murder by the grand jury, he appeared in court and said, "Guilty." Judge Wilson remanded Double to the custody of the sheriff until the court determines the degree of murder and the penalty to be imposed. Judge Wilson fixed Friday as the time.

Correct this sentence: "I don't expect a doctor to come and see me," said the man, "when he isn't feeling well himself."

No more tired let down feeling for me

"I feel and look better —there is color in my cheeks —my appetite is keen —my weight is back to normal."

"This I am noting in my Diary and I give full credit to S.S.S. for causing me to 'feel like myself again.'"

So we suggest—

Don't try to get well in a day... this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown... a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.
